

ASKS 100 WITNESSES IN PACKER HEARING

United States Prosecutor Starts Work on Suits Against "Big Five" in Chicago Courts.

GRAND JURY TO MAKE PROBE

Opening Is Set for Next Wednesday to Prosecute Packers Under Federal Statutes.

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—Subpoenas commanding 100 witnesses to appear before the federal grand jury in the government's prosecution of the packers accused of conspiring to manipulate the food supplies of the nation, were demanded today by Justice J. R. Keay, especially to prevent the great meat interests from getting away.

The subpoenas directed the first of the witnesses to appear before the grand jury next Wednesday.

Among witnesses named are bankers alleged to have loaned money to the packers; railroadmen, their charge of conspiracy; live stock brokers, dealers, grain dealers, commission agents, and employees of packing branches.

The first witnesses are expected to be from Chicago, and subpoenas will be from St. Louis, Detroit, St. Paul, Wichita, Kansas City, and Fort Worth, Texas.

Prominent Texas, commenting on the list of witnesses, said:

"It will be noted that persons of prominence in the packers' industry have not been subpoenaed, and those in obvious positions of command are not even mentioned. We see no reason why they are given immunity. There will be no promise of immunity in this prosecution."

Kreuz said the cases against the packers would be pushed with all possible haste and that he expected to have trials and convictions by the first of the year.

COMMISSION IS URGED TO REGULATE PRODUCTION

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Establishment of a commission similar to the interstate commerce commission for the regulation of food production and manufacture is the plan incorporated in a bill drawn by the officials of a number of farm organizations and submitted to members of congress today. Efforts are being made to have the bill introduced in both the senate and the house.

Under the provisions of the proposed bill the commission would have quasi-judicial functions and would be given authority to act in determination of profits to be made and in the production of food products.

The bill provides that the commission be made up of representatives of the farmers, manufacturers, consumers and shippers and that all of its sessions be held in public.
